July 2009

How Social is Your State Destination Marketing Organization (DMO)?

In an effort to begin bench-marking the web presence of destinations beyond web site visits, Gammet Interactive created a 12-point algorithm that features 28 objects of measurement. The algorithm was then used to create a social media assessment and evaluation of the 50 official U. S. tourism office web sites.

After visiting the official web site of each state tourism office/destination marketing organization (DMO), Gammet Interactive utilized the following 12 primary points to create a complete evaluation of each entity:

- 1) Certified Site Traffic Measurement from Quantcast.com
- 2) Presence of Social Media Icons and Links on the Web Site Home Page
- 3) State Keyword Search in Google
- 4) Facebook Presence
- 5) Twitter Presence
- 6) MySpace Presence
- 7) Flickr Presence
- 8) Panoramio Presence
- 9) YouTube Presence
- 10) Content Sharing Via a Social Media Tool like Add This or Share This
- 11) Blog Presence
- 12) User Generated Content/Review Site

The evaluation was conducted during 21-day period, which extended through late May and early June of 2009. We realize that social media is moving target and it changes daily. The best attempt was made to conduct the evaluation in the shortest time-period possible. We also extended our best effort to find the “official” presence of each specified DMO on sites like Flickr, Facebook, YouTube, etc. If we did not locate specific social media links on the state tourism web site, we attempted multiple searches on the social media site. The searches were done methodically, through a four-step process which would result in a consistent attempt to locate the official destination presence on the specific social media outlet. After the four searches, we abandoned the process recorded the score of “0” for that assessment point.

In effort to present an example of how each point was measured, we have noted a sample of the criteria that we used to determine the score for presence on Twitter:

- a) Presence on the Site= Yes or No
- b) Followers - Assessed on a scale of 0 to more than 15,000 followers
- c) Updates – Assessed on a scale of 100 to more than 3,000 updates
- d) Twitter Grade – Assessed from the Hubspot tool – twitter.grader.com

To our knowledge, this is the first comprehensive, public evaluation done with a multiple set of social media measurements in the destination marketing arena. The state destination marketing organizations are ranked on the following page in descending order, 1 through 50, with the total score on the far right column. The total scores listed are based on a weighted scale with values that were determined from an assessment of the social media outlets, popularity and importance of brand awareness. We welcome your feedback and responses to our measurement criteria and weighting scale. Please forward any comments and suggestions directly to David Serino, Founder and e-Strategist of Gammet Interactive at dserino@gammet.com or post them publicly on the comments sections at - www.daveserinoblogs.com – to create a conversation with others.
